With learners for life

Celebrating 175 years of Macmillan

When brothers Daniel and Alexander Macmillan founded their publishing company in 1843, they created a place that would recognise and value great contemporary writing. They soon made their mark on the literary world, publishing a range of works by extraordinary authors: Lewis Carroll, Alfred Lord Tennyson, Thomas Hardy and Rudyard Kipling to name but a few.

As the company grew, so did the two brothers' belief in the importance of learning. They launched the scientific research journal Nature, followed by the Palgrave imprint, promoting education and academic scholarship around the world. When former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan became Chairman in the middle of the twentieth century, he decided education should be a key focus area for the organisation. With his vision, the company established itself as a world-leading educational publisher with an outstanding reputation.

175 years later, we are building on the Macmillan brothers' commitment to learning and innovation and celebrating the progress that has been made in education globally thanks to their vision. Their love of learning, reading and education is as relevant today as it was in the 19th century and we are proud to be continuing their work as we lead the way in pioneering and forward-thinking solutions for teachers and students across the world.

A love of learning, reading and innovation has always been our mission since the very beginning.

"I thought it worthwhile to plant a seed.
If a large tree grows from this small seed,
we shall be grateful."

Daniel Macmillan, 1843

The beautiful art deco design featured on the opposite page incorporates the letters MM & Co and was regularly used on dust jackets, book spines and covers from about 1911 to 1937. The designer is unknown, but it may have been the Art Director of James Burn who created many other Macmillan logos.

We will be releasing more historic Macmillan logos in 2018 as part of the Macmillan Heritage Collection.

Worldwide rights

Some of our titles are market restricted in certain regions of the world. For full details on the rights issues please visit the 'Rights & Permissions' page on www.macmillaneducation.com

Anti-Piracy

Reporting illegal e-book piracy and physical counterfeits. The sharing and downloading of Macmillan Education books and materials online is an illegal activity which breaches international copyright and trademark law, as is the unauthorised copying and distribution of physical products.
Piracy is taken very seriously by Macmillan Education as it negatively impacts both authors and our ability to produce highly quality books and services. Macmillan Education titles are protected by a dedicated Anti-Piracy team within the General Counsel's Office.
To report suspected piracy of Macmillan products please complete the web form here: <http://www.macmillaneducation.com/anti-piracy/>

Copying

The UK Copyright, Designs and Patents Act of 1988 allows a reader to make a single copy of a limited portion of a work for the purposes of non-commercial research or private study (fair dealing). This limit is subjective and advice should be sought from Macmillan Education.
It does not allow the copying of entire books or the making of multiple copies of extracts. In some countries it is possible for schools to do a limited amount of photocopying under the terms of a licence issued by a licensing agency such as the Copyright Licensing Agency (CLA) in the UK. It is also permissible to photocopy copyright material when the publisher has designated a book or part of a book 'photocopiable'. This special permission is always indicated clearly in the book both at the front and on every photocopiable page. Many of the Teacher's Books that accompany Macmillan Education ELT courses contain such photocopiable material. Under no circumstances may schools photocopy materials for use in self-access centres, unless they have registered with the Copyright Licensing Agency or an associated licensing agency and allow/use photocopying strictly in accordance with their regulations. Please see our website or contact Macmillan Education for further details on copying limits.

Rights and Permissions

If you would like to reproduce, translate or quote from material published by Macmillan Education in print, online, on television, on radio or via other digital media, please check first that we are the correct copyright holders by reading the following information.
