This talk, hosted by Matthew Hayes, will be of particular interest to teachers working in international contexts, or wishing to incorporate cross-curricular skills into their teaching of mainstream subjects. It will demonstrate how educators can play a unique role in enabling their students to participate on the global stage – whether in work or life. In this webinar, Matthew will take you through the concept of Global Citizenship Education (GCE) – where it comes from, what it is, why it matters, and how it can be practically implemented in the classroom. He will cover three broad themes in current GCE thinking and practice: global orientation, global skills and global action.

Matthew Hayes, BA (Oxon), MA (SOAS), is a doctoral researcher at the Institute of Education in London. His research concerns Global Citizenship Education in English language textbooks. Matthew is also the Director of Growth at Publons, the world's largest peer review platform and a part of Clarivate Analytics. Matthew was previously Commercial Director at wisdom.ai, an AI-driven research startup acquired by Taylor & Francis. Prior to that he worked for Springer Nature for 10 years, latterly as Regional Director in their Education division.
